

Tracie Hall

Tracie Hall, Executive Director for the U.S. Green Building Council New York Upstate Chapter, has been involved in the non-profit sector for thirty years. In 2000 her passion for green building and sustainable design was fueled through her direct involvement in a project which became the first LEED® certified building in Syracuse, NY. In 2006 she was named the Green Building Advocate of the Year. She accepted the position as Executive Director for the USGBC New York Upstate Chapter in September 2006. She travels throughout 53 counties in NYS to bring educational programming, advocacy and workshops to the large geographic region the Chapter territory encompasses. Most recently Hall was selected to serve a two-year term on the U.S. Green Building Council Chapter Steering Committee. She also serves on She is a wife and mother of four children; an avid geocacher; and dedicated to helping to shape the future of green building practices throughout the Chapter region.