

Deconstruction LEEDs to Distinctive Interiors

Doug Holland, Founder & Owner, Levanna Restoration Lumber

ABSTRACT

As owner of Levanna Restoration Lumber, and a practitioner of deconstructing, reclaiming, restoring and repurposing barn wood, Doug will share first-hand experiences by discussing the difficulties and dangers of deconstruction, couples with the financial costs and personal sacrifice of reclaiming barn wood for product development and profit.

BIOGRAPHY

Long before starting Levanna Restoration Lumber in 2002, Doug Holland was a student of the fine arts of visual art and music, where his mastery of drumming provided him a career spanning more than three (3) decades and exceeded 100 performances annually. He is a Vietnam-era veteran where he was trained as a combat medic and later served in Special Duty Band. Doug worked as a Draftsman at Pickard & Anderson, Beardsley Architectural Design and Iroquois Gas Transmission Systems, Inc.; and as a Project Manager at Diamond Roofing Co., Inc,
