

Presentation Abstract

Native forest understory herbs: their ecological roles and current conservation issues, Gregory McGee.

This presentation will provide a review of ecological functions of native understory herbs in temperate forests, and explore the variety of factors that affect the abundance and diversity of these plants (including past land use, forest management, excessive herbivory, atmospheric deposition).