

Abstract

Invasive Species Ecology

Dudley Raynal, SUNY ESF

The terms “invader”, “alien”, “exotic”, and “aggressor” vilify herbaceous and woody plants that spread into natural and managed habitats, potentially displacing native species and altering the structure and composition of these habitats. This talk will characterize representative invasive species found in New York plant communities and evaluate the ecological attributes of these aggressive plants that colonize diverse plant communities.

