

Submission of a Manuscript

Canadian Journal of Forest Research uses OSPREY

Welcome to OSPREY (Online Submission and Peer Review System)

OSPREY is our online submission and peer review system. It enables authors to submit their work to the journal using the speed and convenience of the Internet. The journal office, in turn, can start the review process much more quickly, to assess the submission and provide feedback as soon as possible. For reviewers, we can seek your support to review papers and can forward manuscripts, tables, and figures for consideration electronically, without the delays imposed by traditional mailing and faxing of paper copies. Reviewers can return comments using the functionality of the Internet, from the convenience of their desktop.

Journal

- Instructions to Authors displays instructions for preparing your manuscript.
Instructions for preparing your manuscript for submission to the journal
- Submit Manuscript initiates the process to submit a new submission.
Initiates the submission process

Submission of a manuscript is a 5-step process and requires approximately 10 minutes of your time. You will need Adobe Reader. Refer to our Guide for a complete list of valid file formats, mandatory files and other information needed to submit a manuscript.

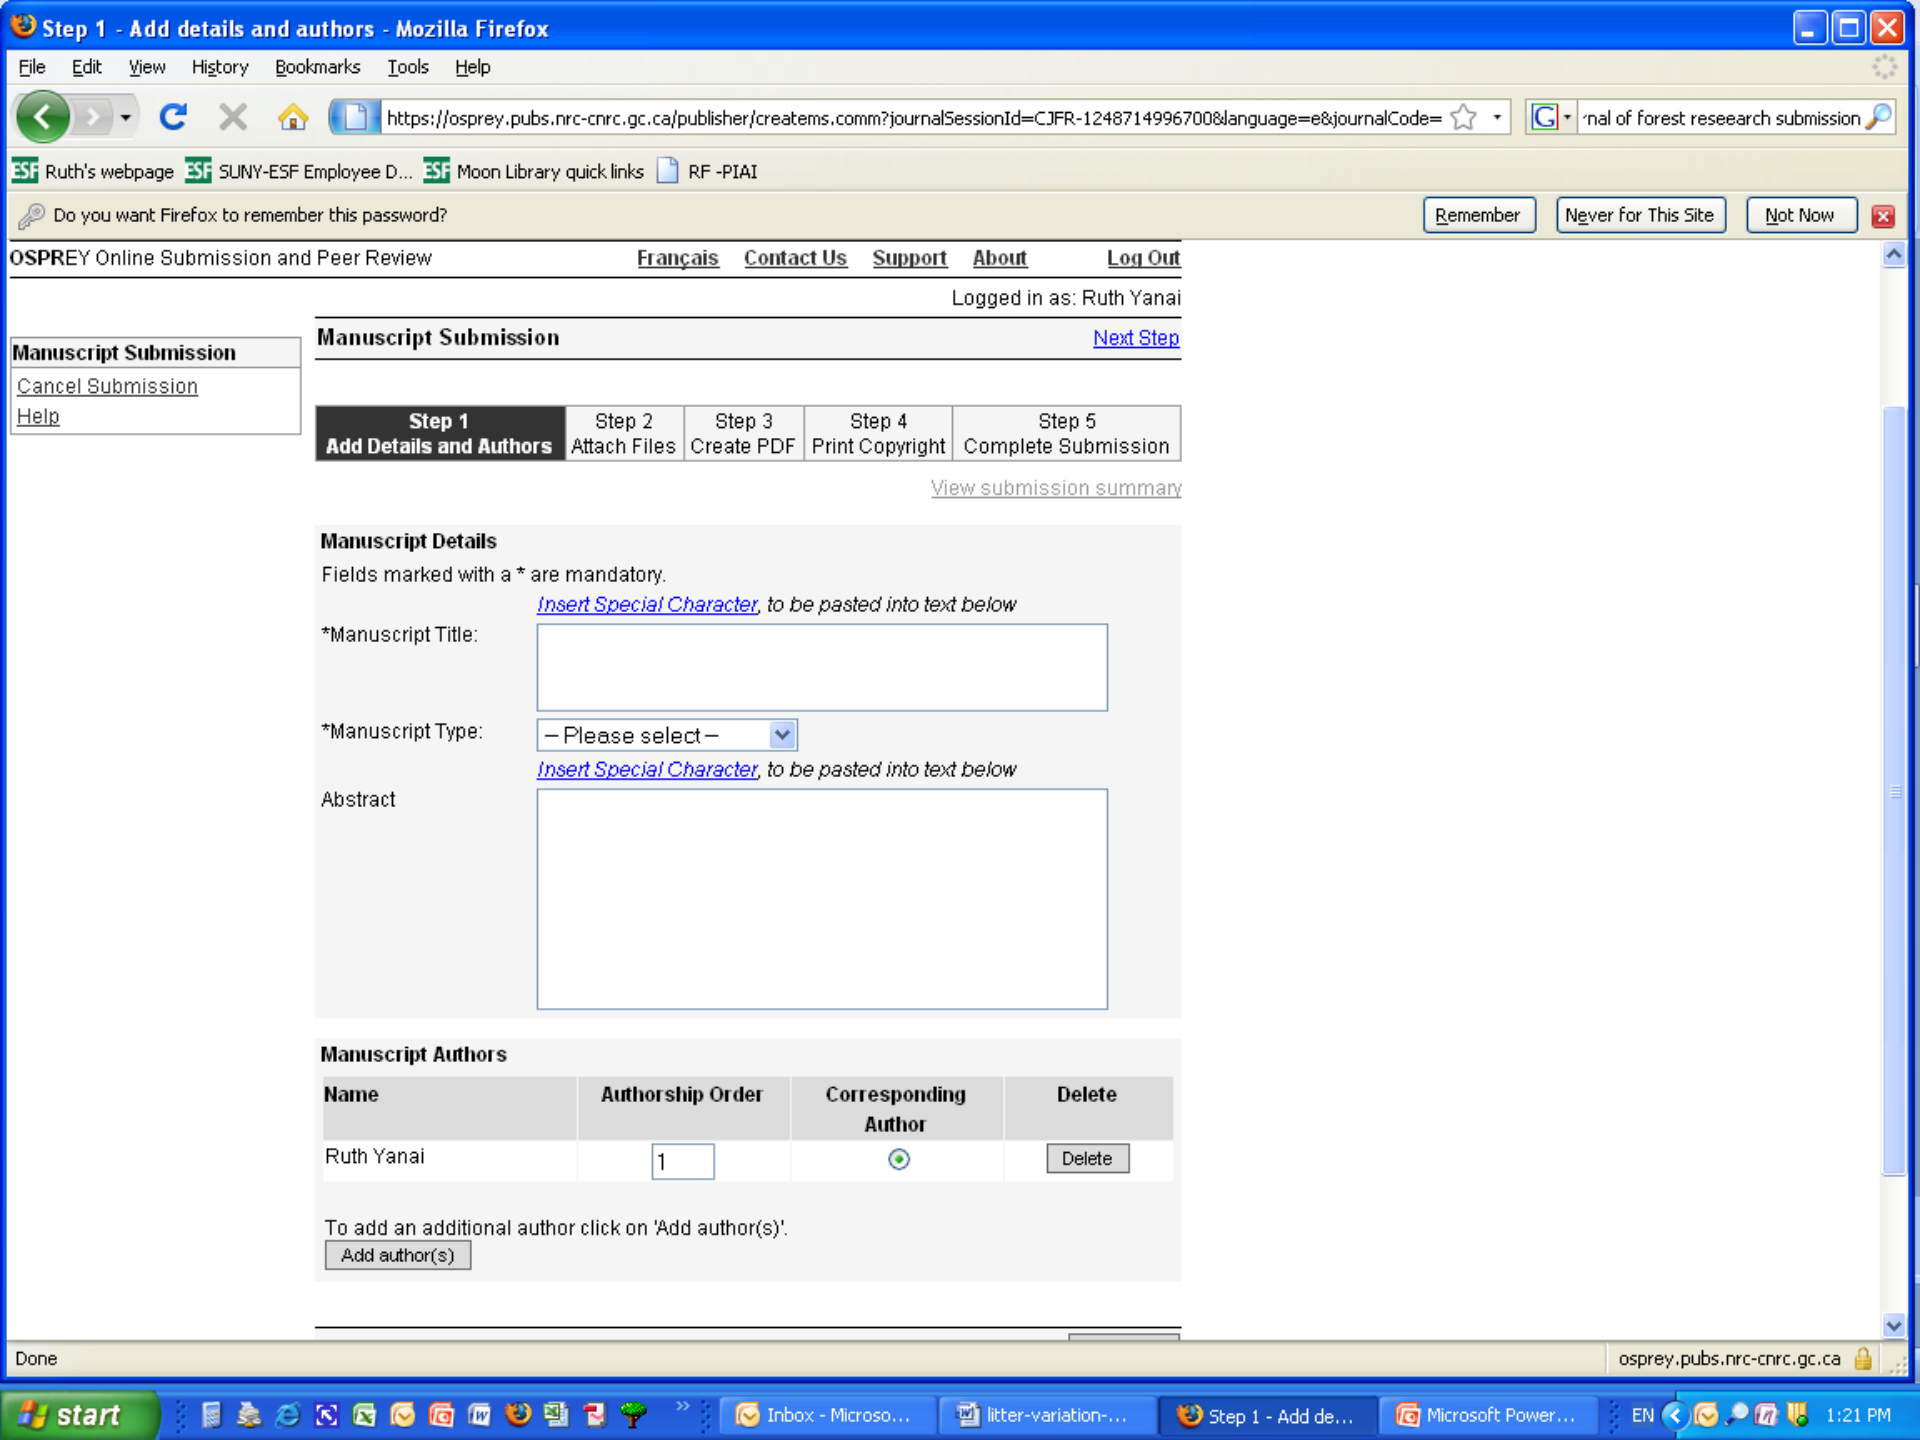

Your Work Areas

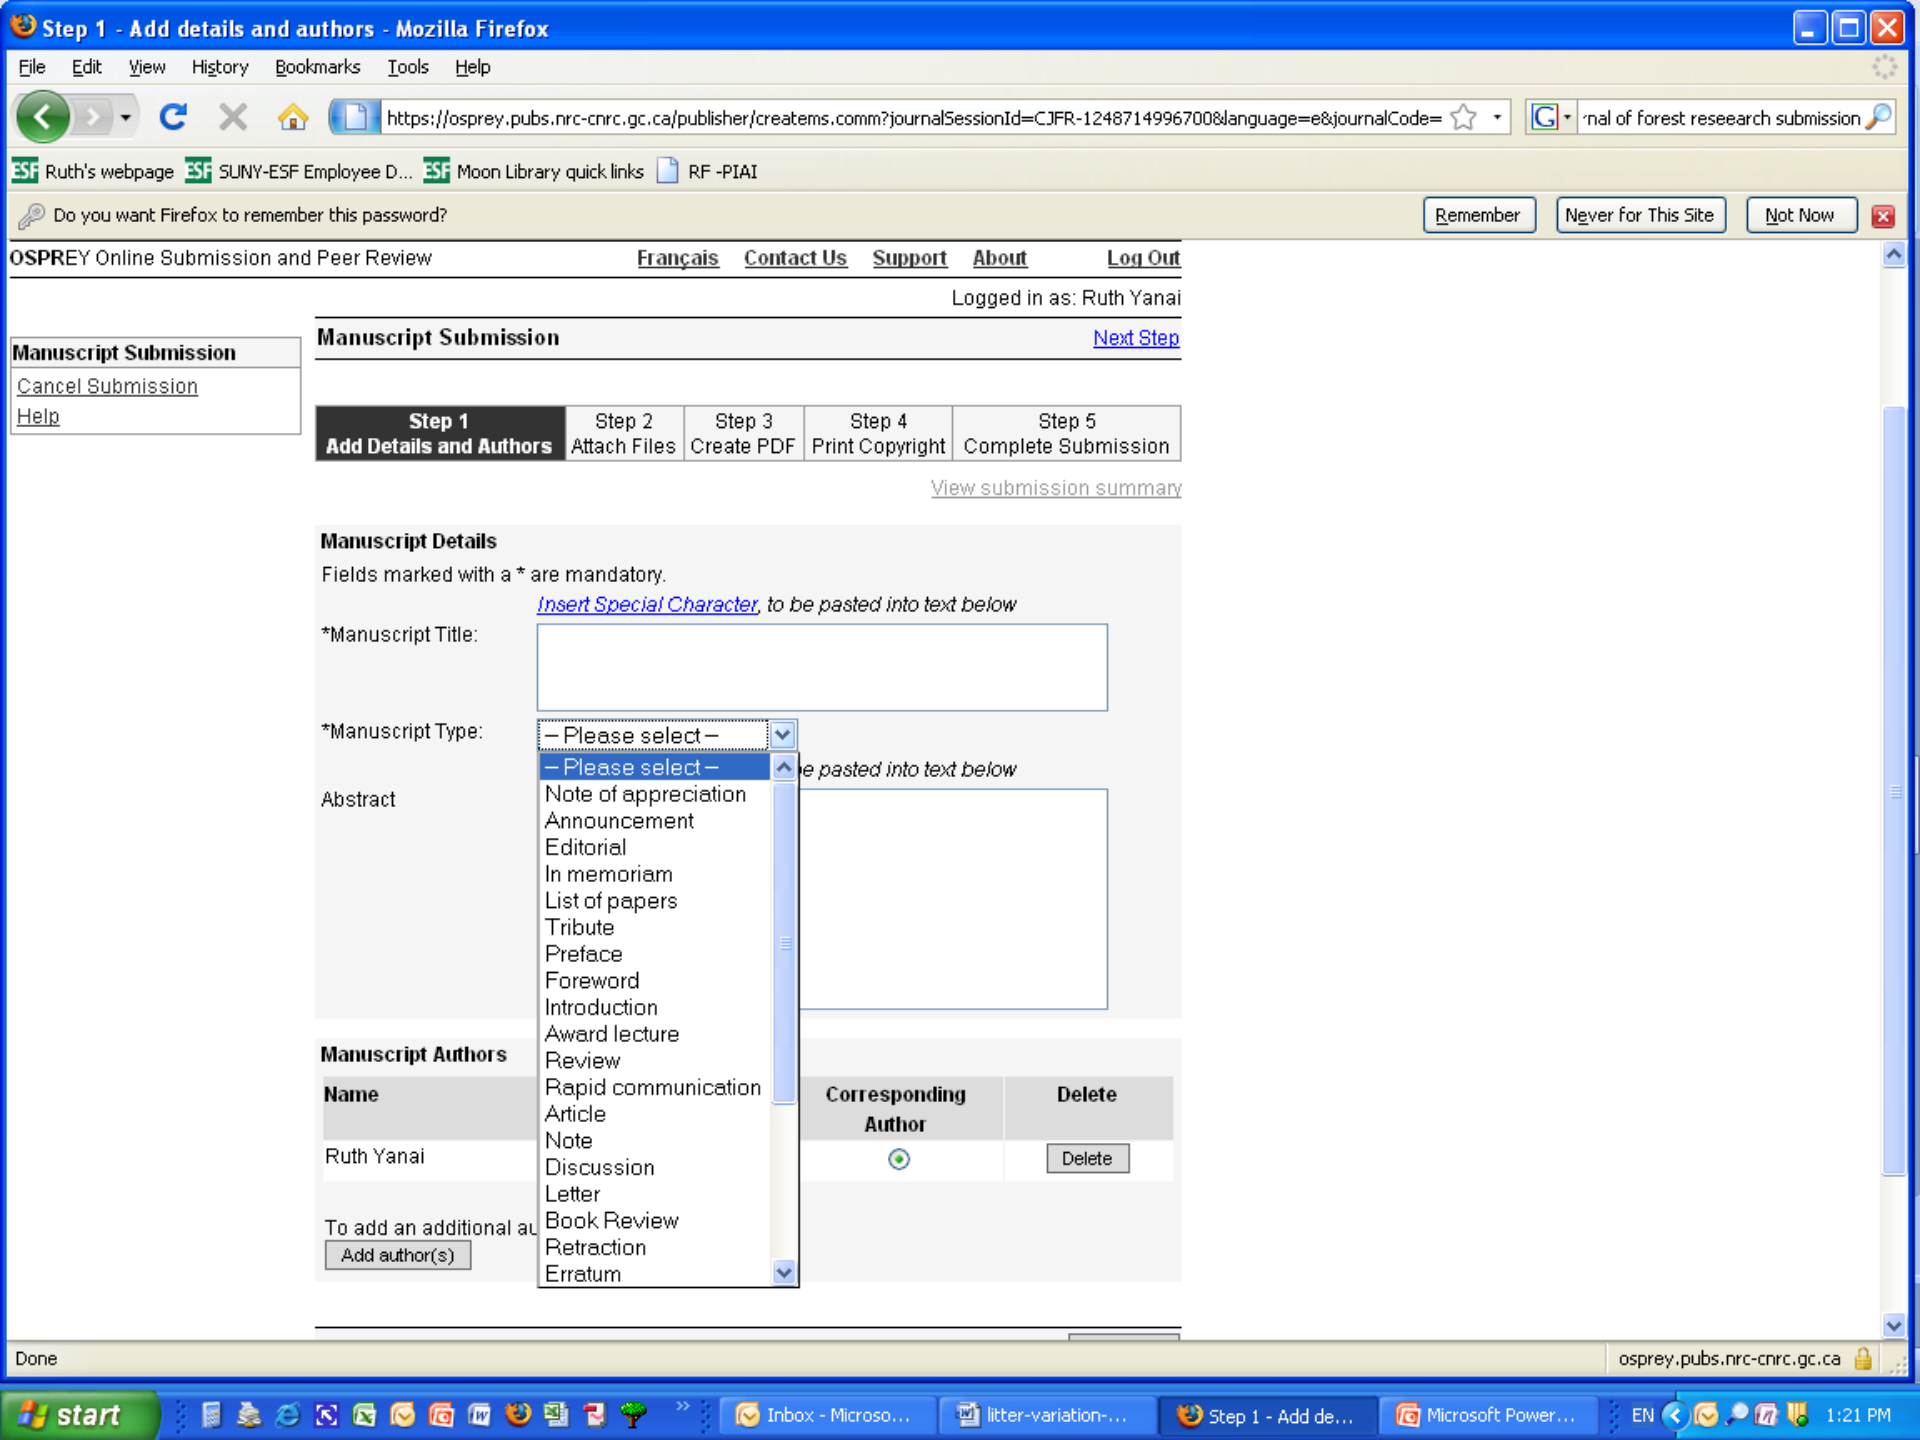

- Your Work Areas and the number of your pending tasks.

Work areas depend on the role(s) assigned to you in OSPREY and may not be available to all users. You will require Adobe Reader to display electronic manuscripts. The number of tasks currently assigned to you is shown in brackets beside each work area, so that you can see at a glance whether your attention is needed.

Check all the way through to ensure it looks as you expected, and then go back to your browser.

You can even email the PDF to your co-authors to have them check as well. But if they won't be returning in the next few minutes, log out, do something else, and log in after you have their responses.

If its OK, click the "I have viewed...and approve" checkbox, and then "next step" to continue this process.

If something didn't upload properly, or you suddenly notice that typo that somehow escaped all previous checks, just use the "previous step" button, and the "delete" button next to whichever file needs fixing, or upload whichever file you missed in the first round.

Continue this step until you really can approve the PDF. Sometimes, it takes a few tries.

We failed to capture a few slides here. Suffice it to say that author approved the PDF and continued to “next step” until the end.

This is the manuscript that I just submitted.

This is a nice feature: I'm not the corresponding author of this paper, but I can check its status anyway!

We'll try to remember to add a slide if the status changes to something that requires action.

Artwork and photos may require separate a separate license

Choose the type of license you need—none of our authors are US government or Canadian Crown employees so we used the standard license.

If you've included materials not of your (or co-authors) own, you'll need to provide proof that you have permission to use.

If you want (or funding agency requires) anyone to be able to view your work, without paying per view, or visiting a subscribing library, you can pre-pay—one payment for all.

It costs a lot to add a little color, and they need to know you plan to cover this.
